CAO moves to Hyland Crest

News leak hastens county's announcement

by Russ Duhaime

Haliburton County's efficiency analysis is still a month away from completion, but staffing changes are already being implemented and proposals for structural changes are on the table.

In an effort to trim spending, a consulting firm was hired this spring to take a look at the inner workings of county government. The report is expected to be presented to county council next month, but it appears that some steps are now being implemented.

The position of Chief Administrative Officer for the county is being redefined. County council is considering the merits of contracting out a segment of the responsibilities associated with the position and hiring part-time staff to take on the remainder of the job.

At a meeting of the county's personnel committee last Wednesday, it was decided that Gary McKnight, the current CAO should be given the opportunity to replace Rheta Jones as the Administrator of Hyland Crest Senior Citizens Home. According to Warden Chris Hodgson, McKnight has agreed to accept the job and is to take on the new challenge at the beginning of July.

Jones is retiring at the end of June, although she recently offered to stay on for another six months to provide stability during the implementation of new Ministry of Health policies for long term care.

In addition to the staffing change, county councilors have met with the consultant to discuss the potential for creating one-tier government here. If accepted, this move would mean that the county's 10 municipalities would be combined in some fashion to form one large municipal government that would represent all of the county.

Hodgson says this option is a long way from becoming a reality. He said the matter was raised by the consultant during a special meeting last month at the PineStone Inn.

In order for such a proposal to fly, it would first need the support of all municipalities -- support that is not currently present.

County Council had been hoping to keep a lid on

The reports are premature

Grace Dixon's wake will have to wait . . . and so will the new roof she wants for her house. Dixon was greeted with a surprise when she received her income tax refund last week and discovered that Revenue Canada listed her among the deceased. Of course, a deceased person cannot cash a cheque, so she'll have to wait until the mistake is corrected before she can use the money to pay for the roof repairs she had planned.

the staffing changes until later this week in order that the county's department heads and staff at Hyland Crest could first be notified. However, Lutterworth Township Councillor Bill Valentine caught wind of the changes and raised the matter during a meeting of his council Thursday night.

County council was forced to push its agenda ahead a week and called the Hyland Crest staff and residents together for a meeting Friday, when the announcement was formalized.

Following the meeting Warden Hodgson expressed his disappointment in Lutterworth Council's handling of the matter. He said the staffing change was decided in a private meeting and should not have been openly discussed until personnel at the home had been notified.

George Simmons, chairman of the Hyland Crest Board of Management, said the appointment provides a sense of continuity at the home, which is essential during a time when changes are being implemented.

The changes, which are all part of the ministry's long term care redirection, have created a sense of anxiety in the home, he said.

"We don't need the anxiety," said Hodgson. "We need someone familiar with the staff and the residents. The bottom line is the quality of care and a sense of security for the residents in the home."

Although the current administrator had offered to stay on for another six months, Simmons said county councillors were looking for something more permanent. McKnight's acceptance of the position provides this security.

Simmons conceded that McKnight may not be fully qualified for the job once the ministry adopts its new regulations. However, he said McKnight is willing to upgrade his skills in order to meet these new regulations.

He said McKnight has the important skills that council was looking for in this position -- the business skills and an ability to work co-operatively with others. "People skills will be the greatest asset we need now," he said.

McKnight has been the Chief Administrative Officer for the county for almost five years. Prior to this, he was the county clerk. He has also filled in on a temporary assignments as the administrator of Hyland Crest.

In order to deal with declining provincial support, CHACE has gone to the community and asked businesses to provide sponsorships equal to the cost of a month's worth of art supplies. The Minden Legion Ladies Auxiliaries is co-sponsoring this month's supplies along with Don Finn. Auxiliary president Sheila Burke was at Minden CHACE Place last Thursday to make the presentation to CHACE volunteer Andrea Roberts. The beneficiaries of this sponsorship program are the children who utilize these valuable community facilities.

Dan Rivett says the council is taking a $300,000 gamble with township funds

Cardiff deputy reeve bails out over court challenge

by Andy Holloway

Cardiff deputy reeve Dan Rivett has resigned from township council citing differences in opinion on how the township should approach potential conflicts involving property development.

Rivett, a first time council member handed in his resignation on May 27 because he felt Cardiff council was taking unnecessary risks with the township's money.

Rivett says he sees one of council's main functions is to act as a mediator in disputes between its residents. In this latest case, Rivett says council has not done all it can and is taking a $300,000 gamble that if lost could seriously harm the township.

The case apparently involves a property developer who thought he had council's permission to proceed with building plans. After a lot of time and $250,000 had been spent there were a number of objections from residents to the plan. Since much of the case was discussed in closed sessions, Rivett will not publicize the details of the case.

The township's insurance company has reportedly refused to back the township if it loses the case in court because they say it is between the township and the developer. The township's residents could be forced to pay about $300,000 when legal fees and interest are factored in. This is an unacceptable risk says Rivett who adds that he has been trying to get council to solve the problem for the last year. Recently, council passed a resolution allowing the case to go to the court, which Rivett says was the final straw which caused his resignation, although he has been unhappy for a long time with the progress of events.

"My intention really was to try and bring a fourth party in on it; the residents, and get them involved," said Rivett.

In his letter of resignation, Rivett said he will not pay any tax increases to cover the township if it loses the case and he apologized to those who elected him.

Councillor Mack Peters was chosen to replace Rivett as deputy reeve while Tom Hart becomes the township's newest councillor. Hart was the first runner up in the 1991 elections.

This year's MNR fire prevention poster winners in the Haliburton area were from right: grade five Archie Stouffer student Rob Milburn, Patti Riley a grade four student from Wilberforce, Gooderham's Stacey Marie Gill also in grade five and Allison Roberts a grade two student at Victoria Street. Milburn's slogan was "Keep fire in its place!", Gill's slogan was, "Don't let fire walk out on you", Riley wrote "Make sure your fire is out before you leave it", while Roberts had "Put your camp fires out before you leave the area." All of the winners got a trip over the Highlands in the MNR helicopter, a plaque and a fancy MNR hat.

Local weather

May was rainier than last year

May was a fairly pleasant month, but with some surprises. May 6 to May 12 was very warm with a high of 31 C (87.8 F). (Hope that wasn't summer) A week later we had a cold period from May 17 to May 24 with heavy frost on May 18. This caused damage to early planted gardens, trees and shrubs.

There were 10 mornings with frost compared with 11 mornings last May. It was quite dry the first half of the month, but rain finally came. Several days had heavy rain, May 23, 24 and May 30, 31 giving us more rain than last May.

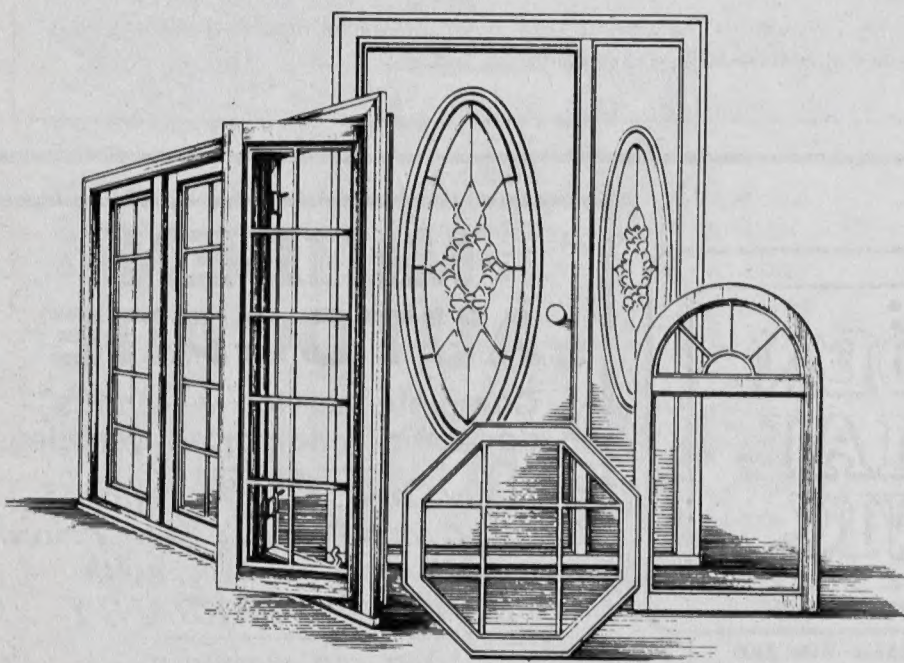

The average temperatures for the month was a tenth of a degree from last May.

Halpin report justifies critics' suspicions

by Russ Duhaime

Longstanding doubts about the accuracy of the financial status of Haliburton County's hospitals have been validated by an independent audit.

The administration at St. Joseph's Hospital provided incomplete and misleading information when it declared that the Minden and Haliburton hospitals are a financial drain on their parent hospital in Peterborough.

According to an independent report of the operational review, the two hospitals actually operated with a $38,000 surplus in 1992/93. This contrasts sharply with previous information provided by the hospital's administration.

The discrepancy arises from the hospital administration's allocation of funding increases from the Ministry of Health. The ministry provides blanket funding to the three hospitals and the administration determines where it will be spent. Since 1990, however, the satellite hospitals have been shortchanged on the funding increases.

Meanwhile, the administration has been rolling depreciation expenses into its formula -- expenses that are not considered as "fundable" by the ministry. "Correcting these errors yields a cumulative shortfall of $216,900 for Minden and $45,500 for Haliburton," the report states.

The report details the allocation of Ministry funds since 1987. Between 1987 and 1990, the report says St. Joseph's was generous with its allocation of ministry funding to the two satellites. However, in 1990/91, things began to change:

- In 1990/91, St. Joseph's received a 5.5 per cent funding increase from the ministry. Meanwhile, the administration allocated a 4.4 per cent increase for Minden and 4.2 per cent for Haliburton.

The administration claimed a deficit of almost $60,000 for the year. The report says an $18,000 deficit is valid.

- In 1991/92, the ministry gave St. Joseph's a six per cent increase. Minden received three per cent and Haliburton received five per cent. The ministry provided an additional $944,000 in special funding that year -- none of which was extended to the satellites.

The administration claimed a deficit of almost $243,000 for the year. The report suggests a $99,000 deficit is valid.

Just over a year ago, St. Joseph's said the two satellite hospitals were operating with a substantial deficit and indicated that drastic measures must be taken in order to generate savings. This announcement sparked panic in Haliburton County -- particularly in Minden, where residents feared the closure of their tiny hospital.

The announcement also sparked sharp criticism from residents who doubted the accuracy of the figures provided by the administration. Dozens of people wrote letters accusing the administration of fudging the figures in order to justify the closure of the Minden Hospital.

Ultimately, the province stepped in and assured the community that it would not allow either of Haliburton County's hospitals to be shut down.

In March, the province hired The Halpin Group to conduct an independent review of the two satellite hospitals. A draft report of their findings was released late last month, which details serious shortcomings in communications, planning and financial accounting.

The report mainly focuses on the relationship of the satellites with St. Joseph's. However, it also finds fault with the relationship between the Minden and Haliburton hospitals.

Communications are a major problem between the satellites and St. Joseph's. There are few formal links between the Minden and Haliburton hospitals, little sharing of resources or exchange of information. "... there is a history of longstanding conflict between the satellite hospitals," the report says.

Structurally, the two satellite hospitals are worlds apart.

The report says the Minden hospital is "overcrowded, inadequately maintained and for all intents and purposes reaching the end of its practical life as a hospital."

Meanwhile, the Haliburton Hospital "has been well maintained and appears to have a different and more involved organization than its counterpart in Minden."

The board of St. Joseph's Hospital held a special meeting last Wednesday to address this report. According to board member Doug Campbell, the hospital's chief administrative officer plans to call a press conference to deal with this matter. Efforts to contact the administrator before press time were unsuccessful.

St. Joseph's board backs local committee's choice

Conditional endorsement is tantamount to a rejection

The decision to build a new long-term care facility in Haliburton village has been granted conditional support by the St. Joseph's Hospital board.

The board met in a closed session last Wednesday to address the recommendation from the county's health care planning committee. And although it supported the recommendation, the board will not provide any additional funding for either capital or operating costs.

The conditions "are tantamount to saying no," said board member Doug Campbell. He said it is his opinion that the proposal to build in Haliburton will not fly without additional funding coming from some source.

The Ministry of Health has promised to provide a portion of the construction costs for up to 30 new beds. Funding is also available from the county and from a previous fundraising drive. However, the community is still about a million dollars short of the estimated capital cost.

Further compounding the matter are the operating costs. The consulting firm that investigated the options for this project worked on the assumption that the ministry will be funding the facility at $100 per bed per day. Campbell said recent contact with ministry representatives leads him to believe that this level is not realistic.

Campbell says the ministry's funding for operating costs will probably be $80 per bed, which is short of the estimated costs to operate this facility.

The consultants have estimated that it will cost $80.99 per bed to operate the proposed facility. The difference leaves an operating shortfall of almost $11,000 per year.

Campbell resigned from the planning committee following the decision to locate the facility in Haliburton. He said a similar facility could be located adjacent to Hyland Crest Senior Citizens Home at a greatly reduced cost. Meanwhile, the operating costs for this alternative were estimated to be less than $66 per day, which is well within the ministry's funding provisions.

Dwayne Cooper, son of Gerald and Pat Cooper, received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Economics and Geography from Wilfred Laurier University on May 29, 1993. Dwayne will begin working with London Life in Waterloo in August.

Robbers hit Kinmount store

by Jerry Grozelle

Security has tightened up at Scott's IGA in Kinmount after someone grabbed an undisclosed amount of money in an afternoon heist.

Guy Scott says he has little hope of recovering "a substantial amount" of money taken from the store on the Sunday of the May 24 long weekend.

"They just gained access to the store and removed the proceeds," Scott said.

He added that he's not sure how much the culprits got away with but even if he was, he wouldn't disclose the amount. He doesn't want anyone to get any more ideas than they already have.

Scott is also hesitant to talk about the circumstances of the incident. "I'm scared to give out any details so these other loonies can get ideas."

The culprits gave no clues as to their intentions, making off with the cash and cheques during the busy afternoon hours. "It was well planned. There was nothing suspicious to my mind," said Scott.

Auditors give glowing report

by Jerry Grozelle

Council for the United Townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford received a glowing report from the auditing firm of Humpage Taylor McDonald.

Gillian Minshall, who headed the audit team, presented its findings at a June 1 meeting.

Municipal tax rates are holding the line, while County and education taxes are rising, she said.

The six-year period saw the municipal levy go from $168,000 to $331,000, an increase of 97 per cent. Over the same period, the County levy went from $71,000 in 1987 to $152,000 in 1992, for an increase of 114 per cent. The School Board put the biggest bite on the taxpayers, increasing by 144 per cent, from $393,000 to $960,000.

"That's very encouraging," Minshall said. "I tip my hat to this council."

In spite of two major purchases in 1992, namely the old school and a grader, the municipality ended the year with a working capital reserves surplus of $45,000. Excluding those two major purchases, the municipal expenditures were down considerably.

The actual operating budget in Laxton, Digby and Longford for 1992 decreased by $55,000 from the previous year.

The municipality is also better than average in the area of tax arrears. "Tax arrears are at about 10 per cent, certainly below the average, which is in the low to mid teens."

Take control

The time has come for this county to stop talking and take action on a plan to take control of our hospitals.

The Halpin report provides us with a clear picture of the inadequacy of the governance of the county's two hospitals under an absentee landlord. The report says the administration at St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough regard our hospitals as a nuisance. In addition, the hospital board has made it clear that it is more than willing to hand over the two hospitals to a local governing body.

Although the province has assured us it will not allow either of our hospitals to be closed, we can't help but feel insecure as long as they are in the control of a body that has little understanding of their vital importance to our community.

The Halpin report says the Minden Hospital is nearing the end of its useful life. We tend to agree with this assessment, but we also fear for the future of this community should the facility be boarded up. We also wonder why there has been little or no ongoing maintenance or upgrading of this facility. Why has the hospital board allowed this neglect to continue?

The people of Haliburton County should be outraged at the shameful lack of planning by St. Joseph's Hospital.

The plans have been laid for the construction of a new Minden Hospital. However, it is highly unlikely that this project will ever materialize as long as the hospitals are in the hands of St. Joseph's. The drive to build a new hospital here will demand determination -- a characteristic which is unlikely to be found in an administration based in a distant city.

We believe the future of our hospitals is dependent on local control. Unless we take control into our own hands, our hospitals are a lost cause.

It's no joke

It wasn't a joke. On the contrary, last week's argument in favour of filling our dumps as quickly as possible was a serious attempt to revive interest in a vitally important issue.

By presenting a ridiculously simplistic theory, we hoped to get people thinking. The county's waste management masterplan is back on track after more than a year of sitting dormant. However, public enthusiasm for this project dwindled while the plan sat collecting dust. The editorial was designed to rekindle a bit of the old enthusiasm.

Some found humour in the editorial. Others missed the sarcasm and found it insulting. Whatever the response, we're pleased to hear it has got people talking.

If there's anyone out there who agreed with the editorial, we urge you to read Ross Rabjohn's comments which begin on this page.

Rabjohn offended by editorial

Editor:

I feel obliged to respond to the editorial in your May 31 newspaper entitled 'Fill em up' in which you advocate putting an end to the business of recycling and composting. I realize that this was written 'tongue in cheek', as a joke, but unfortunately it did not come across that way and it gives simple answers to very serious questions.

To close a landfill site will cost well over $100,000. A municipality will be responsible for testing for leachate for many years. Haliburton County has one site due for closure now and several others very near closure. Sherborne will have to truck to another site everything that comes in to the Dorset site. Are you giving Sherborne permission to truck it to Minden to assist with your filling? Is this gobbledygook and a great big yawn?

You speak of filling old abandoned excavations. You will not obtain permission for another landfill site in Haliburton County until the county completes a waste management master plan for the entire county.

You say it takes a bit of landscape artistry to get the landfill sites looking pretty again. What of leachate?

You correctly identify the need to install pipes to vent the gases "generated by the fermentation of the noxious pulsating mixture below." That same "noxious pulsating mixture" however also generates a very noxious liquid (we call it leachate) which contains all kinds of chemical mixtures and compounds. These mixtures and compounds are always harmful to humans and other living species that might consume them, and very frequently are down right dangerous and in some instances consumption could have fatal consequences. Remember the Love Canal?

Where does this very noxious liquid (leachate) go? Straight into the ground. Those former quarries and mines you are so anxious to fill are locations having either sandy soil characteristics or are in rock. In this county many of our rock formations are highly fractured with a lot of cracks in them. So our noxious liquid goes straight on down and into our ground water system. Over a period of time, the movement of ground water will transport those noxious chemicals a considerable distance. Many private residential wells and some municipal wells tap into ground water reservoirs. If your well is on the down side of a ground water system that is being contaminated by leachate from a landfill site and you have not already found some nasty chemical mixtures in your water, chances are you will sooner or later. That ground water system also moves on to feed some of our county rivers and lakes and drainage systems downstream of this county.

I am not saying that the landfill site operated by the Township of Anson, Hindon and Minden is causing contamination of drinking water at this time. I have to trust that this has been checked to confirm that there is no contamination and that contamination won't occur in the future.

Because of the notorious record of contamination and pollution that has been created by so many older landfill operations (which were located and put into operation before people properly understood what terrible destruction they can cause) there are now very stringent regulations regarding the establishment of new landfill operations. A detailed, time consuming and very expensive study process is required to get approval for a new operation. Also, in many instances and most frequently in areas with soil, rock, drainage and environmental factors such as we find in this county, new sites have to be lined with a water proof material and the leachate (the noxious liquids) fully treated before a clean liquid is released into the surface of ground water systems. Not surprisingly then, such new landfill sites cost millions of dollars (each!).

It makes good economic sense that existing approved landfill site capacity should be made to last as long as possible. Putting less garbage into those sites by reducing, reusing or recycling our waste (the 3Rs) is the way by which every local resident and business can reduce the contamination and pollution threat and help to delay, hopefully for a good number of years, the need to pay out millions of dollars for a new landfill site.

Your suggestion of topping off old dumps and creating new parks, golf courses and building sites also deserves comment. Certainly a number of landfill sites have been developed into parks or similar recreational areas. However, those who try building on them will likely find that a naked light in a basement where methane gas has seeped in from the rotting garbage will be suddenly, very loudly and tragically reminded of the error of their decision.

At a time when your elected representatives are trying their best to find a cost effective way of dealing with a very serious problem I find your editorial, even if it was in jest, to be quite offensive.

Misplaced initials driving people nuts

I've come to the conclusion that a great deal of modern life is specifically designed to drive us nuts.

Traffic light signals, for instance. Have you ever noticed how it is virtually impossible to hit a consecutive string of green lights when you're trying to drive across town? Doesn't matter what chauffeur technique you use - mash the gas pedal through the floor mat and you'll end up squealing to a stop at the next intersection. Poot along in low gear with the emergency brake on and you'll still hit a succession of reds. Does this make any sense? Wouldn't you think the whole purpose of regulating traffic would be to keep a relatively constant flow of vehicles going in all directions with a minimum of stops and starts? Of course. They're just trying to render us gaga.

The Income Tax Guide - there's another sadistic modern creation to render us eligible for admission to the Happy Haven Rest Home for the Cerebrally Overburdened. Revenue Canada has come up with 72 pages of single-spaced instructions that no one this side of a Buddhist monk with a CPA certificate could possibly fathom.

Seventy-two pages of impermeable fiscobabble when all they're really trying to say is, "This is a stick-up." Makes my eyes roll and my tongue loll just thinking about it.

Postal codes - there's another feature of modern day life that can drive you squirrely if you dwell

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

on it too long. I'm so antique I can remember a time before postal codes. A time when you could pick up a quill, address and envelope to, say, "Joe Blow, 123 First Avenue, Anywhere, Canada," slap a ten-cent stamp on it, pop it in the mailbox and it would actually be delivered - usually the next day! Even on Saturdays!

I once lived in a place in northwestern Ontario called Kaministiquia. One day the mailman delivered a parcel addressed to "A. Black, Kam, Ont." It had been mailed from Arizona that same week.

Nowadays you not only have to take out a mortgage to pay for the postage, you also have to include the postal code.

Which might not make me froth at the mouth if the postal codes made any sense at all. Imagine, for instance, if the postal code for my office in Toronto was TOR ONT - or even just contained a familiar T or O. I think my feeble brain could probably handle that.

Instead, the code is M5W 1E6.

And Kaministiquia, Ontario? You'd think the postal code would at least include the letters K or M, would you not?

Forget it. The postal code for my Kam compadres is POT 1X0.

And it's not just postal codification. Ever perused the paper tags that airport ticket agents attach to your luggage? You will see memorable nuggets of consonants such as YYZ and YLW.

YYZ stands for Pearson International. YLW is Kelowna, B.C.

Most of the codes for airports make not the slightest connection with the name of the place. Most of them aren't even pronounceable. Flights into and out of St. John's, Newfoundland are coded YYT. For Windsor, Ontario it's YOG.

Other nations take a less bizarre approach. Kennedy Airport in New York? That's JFK. Le Bourget Airport in France is designated FPB - which sounds confusing until you unravel the Gallic logic: F for France, P for Paris, B for Bourget.

In Argentina, most of the airport codes begin with, surprise, surprise, the letter A. In Brazil, they begin with B; in Japan it's J and in Sweden it's S.

Even Turkey, for heaven's sake, has the letter T at the beginning of all its baggage tags.

But in Canada all the airport codes begin with the letter Y.

Don't ask me Y?

Flying into Boston? Look for BOS on your tags. Los Angeles? They'll read LAX.

Saskatoon? Watch for YXE.

It's enough to make your average Canuck a tad P.O.'D.

Teen centre is needed says parent

Editor:

I assume Mr. Brandon is either very wealthy or does not have teenagers. I do have a teenager and sure, we have lots of facilities here, but they're not for the local people and I'll give you some examples.

Skiing - $30 day for tow ticket, $20 for rentals
Movies - Run about $7.50

Dances which run once a month - $7 plus $2 for bus fare

Swimming in the summer is free provided you can arrange transportation to the beach. In the winter at a resort it's $12 an adult and $6 per child for one hour. For a family of three that's $30. I don't know about anyone else, but that's about a third of my weekly grocery bill.

Most of these teenagers don't have jobs and are supported by their parents. In an area where there is little to no opportunity for parents to gain employment, how can you honestly expect parents to provide money for some of these outrageously priced activities. I know I can't.

The key word here is resort, which is defined as a place where people go on vacation. Sure you are right, there are lots of facilities, but most of them are at resorts. I am not on vacation I live here year round. And these facilities provide tourists with various activities to keep them coming back. But as far as a community goes, we seem to be blind to our own. I disagree with the statement that a recreational centre would be a waste of money. Money invested in our future is never a waste.

But if these kids are not allowed to socialize, aside from a controlled environment (school), they will either get into trouble with the law or leave.

Maybe a committee, set up by teenagers to address their needs, would be a good place to start. I would volunteer my help.

Teacher's salaries go back into communities they serve

Editor:

Having read contributor K.C. Dam's epistles over the past weeks, one must assume he is a product of the same system that provided his illiterate child with his education.

He must boil with anger when teachers - who apparently don't pay any sort of tax - drive their new Mercedes Benz (not purchased in the Haliburton Highlands) out of town to buy their groceries and clothing.

Of course, teachers never use local contractors when any building has to be done and none of the local service stations has ever worked on a teacher's car.

With regards to teacher's salaries, any CPA or lawyer (who usually have less education than a teacher) would consider themselves to be a dismal failure if they brought home the same pay cheque as a teacher.

Doctors and policemen, among other members of our community are also civil servants - our tax dollar paying them and all that. Dare we suggest that they should take a cut in pay to bring them in line with the average salary in the county?

Finally, perhaps we should pay teachers the way baby sitters get paid. I think $20 a day is the going rate. Assuming a class size of 20 students - which parents and teachers agree is a low estimate - and 165 school days in a year we would end up paying a teacher $66,000 (20x165x20). Then you need to find more money for the salaries of principals, secretaries and custodial staff - who cares about books, computers and the rest of the paraphernalia the gurus implement to provide our children with an education.

Deep Bay boat house obscures river view

We would like to compliment the County Roads Department on the new Deep Bay Road at Gull Lake. It certainly is an improvement. It's too bad the boat house sitting on the shore could not be removed, as it certainly detracts from the new view.

Teens getting respect from local businesses

Editor:

As the summer rolls into Haliburton County, I would like to express a thought to the local businesses.

During my several years as a local shopper I have encountered many pleasant business owners. I have been treated with respect and courtesy and been made to feel valued as a responsible customer. Teenagers are not always treated as such.

I feel a sense of gratitude and pride that this age group is not overlooked as being a part of the community.

My respect has grown for each business that has been willing to treat me with a business-like attitude. Thank you to all of you who have made the effort, and I hope others will choose this perspective in the future.

of council are? Sometimes new blood is needed and taxpayers may want a say in the matter.

He who laughs at Leafs always laughs last

Twenty-one years ago, during a feud with his friend's 12-year-old brother Angelo, over which hockey team was the best, a precocious five-year-old boy said the Toronto Maple Leafs would not win the Stanley Cup during the rest of the 20th century.

He was laughed at by the older brother and by a number of his friends later on in the day. Over the years, the boy grew into a man and often repeated the prophecy and was always greeted with scorn and derision.

"Of course the Leafs will win the cup this year," they all said each and every year, heaping laughter onto the lad, the "oh-so-naive" hockey fan.

And every single year, the lad had the last laugh, as the Leafs fell flat on their faces in spring.

Well, for the 25th straight year the Leafs did not win the Cup and for the 21st straight year that 'lad', myself, gets the last laugh.

HA!

Oh sure, the Maple Leafs gave their fans a rise, but those truly in the know knew they would fold like a house of wispy cards in the end. The truth was discovered on the evening of Saturday, May 29 when I went for a walk around Haliburton Village at 10:45 p.m. I discovered no one singing, honking horns or yelling praises of the Leafs. Even the atmosphere outside of McKeck's was decidedly depressed - but I was ecstatic.

Having lived in Toronto for 20 years I've heard

Rantin' n' Ravin'

by Andy Holloway

the same thing every time the Leafs won a game - not a string of games, but a single, solitary game - at the beginning of the year, "The Leafs are going all the way. Stanley Cup time here we go."

It can get pretty tiring to hear such morons every day of every year. So I moved.

OK, so I didn't move because of the Leafs, but I could have. In this province, 28 per cent of the people surveyed before the playoffs said the Leafs would win the Cup. As the Leafs won a few games people, not true fans mind you, started jumping on a very old and nearly shattered Toronto bandwagon. Of course these late comers were the loudest and most obnoxious as are most new recruits to weird Waco religions and Buffalo Bills fans - who are also losers I might add.

One so-called Leaf fan who called a radio station one morning plumbed the depths of his stupidity. He said Pat Burns should be elected president of Canada!

President of Canada!? Do we have one?

Maybe he meant president of a club or group, I thought trying to give the poor man the benefit of the doubt. Perhaps, Donut Eaters Anonymous would be one such club. Or the Canadian chapter of Hair Club for Men. Or even president of those sure to die before they're old - of a heart attack - think about it, Burns is overweight, easily riled and in a high stress job. But no, the fan went on to say that Cliff Fletcher, the man who hired Pat Burns and the real architect behind any success the Leafs had this year, should be named finance minister.

So Pat Burns' boss should now be reduced to Pat Burns' employee. Now that's a really good career move. Whenever you win, you get demoted. No wonder the Leafs blew it again.

On further reflection it would seem this guy took things a little too seriously, as did most Leaf fans this spring. They had a good year, not a great one. They are one of the oldest teams in the league, even older than the senior citizen L.A. Kings, so this was their last gasp for a while unless players like Scott Pearson learn how to skate, which doesn't seem likely. Nothing to earn such lavish devotion.

So enjoy the pitiful amount of success you got this year, Leaf fans, because it will be a long time before you get another taste.

Just six more years and the prediction made in 1971 by a five-year-old boy will come true.

Read your tea leaves, anyone?

Finally, before any Leaf fan takes this too seriously, I will add that my team is the Philadelphia Flyers who have not made the playoffs in three years. And no, I wasn't born in Philadelphia.

Meet four of Haliburton's track stars

Chris Greenfield on course for better things

Chris Greenfield is an 18-year-old OAC student at HHSS who has been competing in track for eight years. He qualified for OFSSA in the 200 metre sprint and the 400 metre run as well as with the relay team.

Greenfield says that at the all-Ontario meet he has set his sights on the finals in both events which would place him among the top eight competitors.

After high school Greenfield says he is hoping to get a scholarship to a school in the United States or if not there in Canada. He plans to attend university to become a physical education teacher regardless of the scholarship outcome.

Seven qualify for Ontario finals

by Oliver Greer

Seven competitors from the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School track team have qualified for competition at the all-Ontario level. Four individual competitors qualified for the meet as well as the 4x100 metre relay team which is comprised of Andy Bacon, Chris Greenfield, Jason Simmons and Shane Sisson. The team finished fourth at the qualifying meet with a time of 45.1 seconds.

Although Mother Nature did not co-operate with competitors, the weather was cold and damp, these athletes still managed to qualify in their events.

Anna Tomlinson picked up a third in the junior girls' triple jump with a jump of 10.3 metres and a fourth in junior girls' long jump with a leap of 4.82 metres.

Tim Stouffer finished third in midget boys' javelin with a throw of 44.6 metres.

In senior boys pole vault Endres Weber came in second at a height of 3.85 metres.

Chris Greenfield ran the 200 metre sprint in a time of 22.4 seconds for a third and the 400 metre run in 50.1 for a second.

Anna Tomlinson performing by leaps, bounds

Anna Tomlinson is a 16-year-old grade ten student who has been competing seriously in track for about three years.

At the OFSSA meet Tomlinson is aiming for a berth in the top five in both junior girls' triple and long jumps.

After high school Tomlinson hopes to study to become a phys-ed. teacher and is planning to continue her track and field career on her future school's track team.

Endres Weber flying high over competition

Endres Weber is an 18-year-old grade 12 student who has been competing in the pole vault for three years.

In all Ontario competition Weber has set his sights on the top three which would win him a medal. Weber also says he is hoping for a personal best performance.

After high school Weber plans to continue his track and field career and attend college or university hopefully on a track scholarship. Weber says he would attend in either the U.S. or Canada but athletic scholarships are not as predominant in Canada.

Tim Stouffer hopes to spear a top five finish

Tim Stouffer is a 15-year-old grade 10 student who has only been competing in javelin for two years.

In all-Ontario competition Stouffer is hoping to be among the top five competitors in his event.

After high school Stouffer says he doesn't really see himself having any future in track and field. He is hoping to attend university, however, and probably pursue a career in the engineering field although he says it's too early to be certain.

OFSSA track and field results will be published in next week's edition.

Black Bear Rally on the prowl

by Andy Holloway

Cars will be squealing through the back roads of the Highlands this Saturday as the Black Bear Rally makes a return to Minden.

The rally has been taking place in Minden since the late 1970s and is the closest race to the Toronto area in the Ontario Performance Rally Championship series. And while a long distance race may not be everyone's cup of tea, there are a couple of great opportunities to meet and see about 30 racers in action, says race organizer David Paisley.

Registration for the race takes place beginning at 9 a.m. when cars will be given a safety check by race marshals. This will continue to noon and until that time people can walk around and look at the cars says Paisley.

"People are welcome to come out to the arena on Saturday morning and wander around to look at the cars. By all means strike up a conversation with one of the drivers - that's probably the best way to find out what it's all about."

The cars are generally small, reinforced imports with added safety features like roll cages, fire extinguishers and four corner seat belts. While driving the back roads at high speeds may seem like racers will be in for a bumpy ride, Paisley says it is actually quite smooth.

"The race is very popular with the competitors mainly because the variety of roads makes it a challenging and very enjoyable event. Most of these cars have very sophisticated suspensions with gas shocks and things like that, so even though most people might think it would be like riding in a pickup truck with an empty bed, they would be surprised at how smooth it actually is driving in these cars."

Victoria pair caught fishing out of season

Two Victoria County men were fined $200 each in Minden Court last Tuesday for possessing walleye taken from Four Mile Lake before the start of the open season.

Steven A. Fox of Fenelon Township and William Quinn of Kirkfield each entered a guilty plea before Justice of the Peace Opel Rosomind.

In assessing the fine of $200 per fish Justice Rosomind said the two men were impatient and that their behaviour was unsportsmanlike.

"I'm surprised that sportsmen, knowing that starting early is illegal, wouldn't have preferred the suspense of waiting for the legal opening," said Justice Rosomind.

In addition to the fine, two walleye were ordered forfeited to the ministry and will be donated to charity.

The court heard that Minden area Conservation Officer David Ferguson and deputy conservation officer John Almond encountered the two defendants trolling for walleye, also known as yellow pickerel, less than an hour before the midnight season opening on May 8.

The two officers used an electric outboard motor powered boat and the cover of darkness to sneak up on some boats fishing in one part of the lake in Somerville Township.

Fox and Quinn were the second pair to be charged that evening.

"Though they denied fishing for walleye when we first approached them, they admitted it pretty quickly when my partner spotted two walleyes in the bottom of the boat," Ferguson said.

"The Ministry of Natural Resources is concerned with the over harvesting of our game fish species, and although starting an hour before the season opens is not going to make or break a fish population we can not condone such a 'me first' attitude towards our resources," Ferguson said.

Sports plays key role in learning process

by Kim Smith

High Times

When the word "school" comes to mind, one thinks of books, teachers, studying, and homework. Many students, however, think that the time after 3:30 p.m. is what school is all about.

No. It's not because it's time to go home, it's because they have the opportunity to stay at school for an extra hour and a half. No longer is their teacher yelling at them to do their homework. Now their coach is yelling, "Run faster! Push yourself! Think about what you just did! Do it again!"

There are a lot of misconceptions about high school sports. I think the biggest one is that people join a team in order to get days off school without being counted absent. This theory makes me laugh.

First of all, before students even think about getting a day off school, they have to make the team. This is a time when, on the day after the first tryout, their bodies are very sore. They can barely make it out of bed. Someone almost has to shove them from behind to get them up the stairs and just trying to get the books from the top shelves of their lockers is painful. On the same day, they have another practice.

Those who make it to practice every night do so because they love it. They're able to feel something other than the soreness of their bodies.

They go through this usually 4 nights a week, and then there are the weekends. They use the extra time to practice some more, not to rest.

Finally, the list is up for the team. Now they have to live through the stress of looking for their names.

Students who don't make the team have to be able to see the good side of trying out. They got involved, met other people who like sports, tested their physical and mental strengths and gained experience that they can use when they try out for other teams. And trying out again is very important.

Those who make the team have at least another two weeks worth of practices to get through in order to get their first day off school.

Whoever said that practices were easy should try attending one. Students have to realize that just because they see people joking around or laughing hysterically at practice does not mean that the practices are easy. Fun, yes. Easy, no.

Now the team has practiced for approximately 3 weeks: 4 nights a week at 1 and a half hours each night, 2 weekends (4 days) for one hour each day. Most likely, team members had also spent a week (approximately 5 hours) getting in shape before the sport even began. This all adds up to 27 hours of physical work.

It seems like an awful amount of effort just to get one day off school.

Another important point is that the phrase "dumb jock" does not exist in the vocabulary of HHSS students. Academically, sports make athletes more disciplined. Whether or not they're exhausted after practice, they know their homework has to be done that evening, or they will have to get up extra early the next morning to do it.

When they miss a day of school (eight classes at 40 minutes each), they have an extra five hours and 20 minutes of class work to catch up on, not to mention extra studying.

That's what every athlete has to go through.

When I say the athlete, I don't mean the star player, or the person who breaks every record. An athlete is a person active by training. In this definition, it does not say he/she has to be good. What it means is someone who is involved in any sort of physical activity.

At HHSS there are field hockey, football, soccer, volleyball, cross-country skiing, badminton, track and field, tennis, cross-country running and archery teams. Also available to all students are a weight room, aerobics classes, basketball and noon hour intramural teams which are tons of fun. There should not be anyone who can look at this list and say that it's impossible to participate in school sports.

There are many benefits to exercising. It can make people feel better, look better, and sleep better. Participants have more energy and get the chance to meet new people. Above all, it gives them a goal to work towards.

Now that it's the end of the school year, it's too late to start joining teams, but next year be sure to participate. For all the new students coming to HHSS, get involved. It will help you meet new friends and give you something to look forward to each day. For students who have never tried out before, join up. It's worth your time.

On a final note, now that summer has arrived, be active. Get together with friends and go biking, swimming, jogging, golfing, walking, weight lifting, or play a game of tennis. There are many options.

Make an effort to participate. It's a great feeling!

Haliburton drops fourth straight

Haliburton Westside Jug City is running into some tough opponents so far this year in the Muskoka District Soccer League.

Of the four games they have played so far, Haliburton has been up against four of the top five teams in the league. Last Sunday in Midland, Haliburton lost another one, this time 3-1 to the third place North Stars.

Darren Parsons scored the lone goal for Haliburton, who have scored just two goals this year.

The loss keeps Haliburton in last place and without a win this year. Having given up just 10 goals in those four losses, the team could have had better results if its offence became derailed a bit. Haliburton is the lowest scoring team in the league.

In another game last Sunday, Keith McKewan of the Collingwood Lakers scored five times in a 10-2 win over Orillia. McKewan now leads the league with seven goals.

Drivers racing for pride not money

In any case, the drivers must like it because there certainly isn't much prize money for them. The purse has yet to be set, but will be determined on how many cars enter. Safe to say it isn't big, but Paisley says the drivers are in it for the trophy and the thrill. Most of the drivers are from southern Ontario with the closest team to the Highlands being from Bracebridge.

The start of the race at 1 p.m. is mostly ceremonial with cars taking off at one minute intervals. They then proceed north up Bobcaygeon Road until they cross Highway 118 where the real fun begins. Drivers will race through the Ministry of Natural Resources access roads in the back lots of Anson, Stanhope and Sherborne municipalities.

The Sherborne Lake Road provides spectators with the best view of the actual racing says Paisley. Cars will begin arriving at about 2 p.m. on the hilly road and then, when all the cars are in, they will be turned back out at one minute intervals. This road is the best to see the action because it's easy to get to and is the turnaround point, meaning you can see the action twice. Paisley says the bumps on that road will cause the cars to get airborne which should make for some pretty "thrilling" spectating.

Spectators can get to the road by parking on the shoulder of Highway 35 and then walking along Sherborne Lake Road for about one kilometre. Marshalls will be in the area to keep track of people and monitor traffic.

The Black Bear Rally is the third event in the Performance Rally Championship series. Seven events in all take place throughout central Ontario with the end of the season event taking place at Tall Pines on November 19-21.

Paisley says the drivers like the Minden event because it has a lot of facilities like resorts, motels and other businesses. It is also the closest major centre to the roads that the racers and organizers like to use.

All told, close to 200 people working with the race will enter the Highlands this weekend. Combined with TimberSports, it should make for an exciting weekend in Minden.

Carnarvon artist only does it his way

by Andy Holloway

Many can be a jack of all trades, but few are an ace of all trades.

Nowhere is this old saw more relevant than in the world of art. As a result of the economy, today's artists often find a medium in which they excel, sell a few pieces, and then find that is all people want to see from them.

Local artist profile

Experimentation is not what the general public wants.

However, once in a while, an artist tries to change that perception of the art world by going out on a limb and doing whatever pleases him.

Carnarvon resident Claudio Mestroni is one such person.

Mestroni's show at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery (until June 19) is wonderfully diverse, often soul searching, but never boring.

He paints in acrylics, watercolours and oils with equal skill, mixing the sometimes-mutually exclusive painting techniques of each with excellent results. The topics are wide ranging, with a recent emphasis on native people and their way of life.

Adding to that, the canvases are of varying shapes, including a series of round paintings that can be framed or left on their own. There are also bone carvings and sculptured bone knives. Mestroni has more, but there is only so much space in one gallery. The styles may be different, but there is a common thread that distinctively marks them as Mestroni pieces, and not a loose gathering of works as one might expect.

Having such diverse interests has caused him a few problems in the art world admits Mestroni. On the other hand he says he can do what he wants when he wants because there is no pressure on him to sell what he makes for a living. Artists like Robert Bateman for example, who Mestroni says has great technique and talent, could do many different things, but all people want from them are wildlife paintings.

Many shows at local galleries feature paintings depicting the Highlands landscape and while there are a couple of landscape works at Mestroni's show, there is a great deal more.

"There are some beautiful landscapes out here, but sometimes they don't sing to me, which is why I like doing a lot of different things," Mestroni says about his work.

"The work featuring natives, I've been doing for about the last seven years and it's like my own personal education system."

Claudio Mestroni can work in various media, with ability and accomplishment.

Mestroni moved to the Highlands four years ago from Toronto, although he had been coming here for many years prior to that. He was born in Italy and moved to Canada at age 11.

His life experiences, however, transcend national borders. Mestroni has grown close to native communities in Ontario and the United States and says he see a lot of energy in southern states like New Mexico and Arizona that just isn't present on the Canadian scene. He was even given a "medicine name", Star Bear Heart Man, by a California medicine man, a rarity for a non-native.

"You are supposed to grow into the names," says Mestroni. "You can't say 'Oh, I don't want to be called that'. You take it."

The name provided inspiration for a biographical piece called Star Bear which is awash in bold blue and is spiritual for even the casual observer.

Another of Mestroni's talents is working in 3-D. Rather than be content to paint landscapes, models or nudes in a flat, traditional way, Mestroni has constructed 3-D paintings by first drawing an outline, then using material to rough out a 3-D effect before finally painting the end result. For it to work well, Mestroni says you must have the finished piece in mind at all times.

Openly critical of art educators and the poor funding of the arts, Mestroni says students should have more time to experiment with art rather than being told exactly what to do. His position on the Agnes Jamieson Gallery committee does give Mestroni some say over the local art scene, but he says there is much work to be done here and in the rest of the province.

He adds that government and private sector funding of the arts is not as high as it is in the States, which is a shame because art can last forever.

"Who remembers the mayor's name at the time of Michealangelo?" asks Mestroni.

Good point.

Destreaming grading scheme gets committee approval

by Andy Holloway

Parents of grade nine students will have plenty of opportunities to see how their children are doing next year as the high school is planning to send out four reports per semester which must be signed and returned.

The education committee recommended last Tuesday that the school board adopt the assessment and evaluation model for the transition years presented to them by Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson. The model was worked on by the Parental Advisory Committee and Robinson.

Communication is the key to how well the new program will work said Robinson. In September, a written explanation of the changes will be given to students. The form must be signed by the parent and returned. As well, there will be a meeting on June 28 for all parents of current grade eight children so they can understand the system ahead of time.

Marks will still be given on progress reports, but anecdotal information and advice will also be offered concerning the student's performance.

Committee chair Wendy Ladurantaye said the need for proper communication between schools and parents will be emphasized because not only is destreaming new, but students will be taking semestered courses for the first time as well.

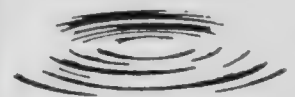

Lutterworth trustee Cheryl Murdoch said the board, on the whole, must communicate better because some parents believe their child will have a "miraculous change" in their abilities between elementary school and high school.

Surprise!

The students and staff at Archie Stouffer school in Minden surprised their principal and vice-principal with a departure gift. McKay Brydon and Judy Tomlinson-Ross will be moving to new schools in September. At a surprise ceremony in the auditorium, the two were presented with panoramic photographs of the entire school body. The photo was taken a few weeks ago when the two were away at a meeting.

Committee says 'no' to TV violence

by Andy Holloway

Haliburton trustees say there is too much violence on television and want the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission to take steps to reduce the amount of gratuitous violence seen on programs.

A similar policy was adopted by the Scarborough Board of Education who expressed the opinion that increased violence on television has resulted in violent behaviour among youths who model themselves after their heroes.

Glamorgan trustee Craig Petit said he agrees there is too much violence on the tube, but that parents have to take some of the responsibility for what their children watch. However, Snowdon trustee Elsa May said in some cases that can not be done because single parents are out working and not monitoring what their children watch after school. May said the board should "try to get less or at least minimize the amount of violence on television."

The motion urges the CRTC and the television industry to voluntarily reduce the amount of violence on television. There was, however, nothing in the motion to say what the next step would be if the industry ignores the call, a prospect Minden trustee Wally Bunn said is likely.

The CRTC has no control over television signals beaming in from the United States, especially for those who have satellite dishes and so regulating violence on CBC would do little to lower the overall level seen by children. Bunn noted that most people do not watch CBC in any case.

"It doesn't hurt to give an opinion, but I think it will fall on deaf ears."

Education director Brad Saunders, however, said that violence is not just a Toronto problem and that it wouldn't hurt for the board to add its voice.

The last word must go to Cardiff trustee Lloyd Griffiths who quoted this old nugget, "An open mind is a good thing to have, as is an open door, but you put a screen up to keep the bugs out."

Drainville making push for reform

House leaders agree to seek changes to allow all members to make statements

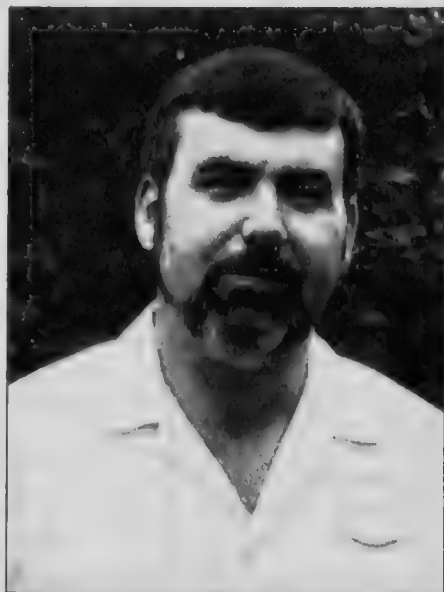

Haliburton's MPP is making small gains in his push for government reform.

Independent MPPs may soon have the same rights and privileges as their counterparts, thanks to some prodding from Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville.

At Drainville's urging, the House leaders of all three political parties met with the Speaker to discuss the need to ensure that all members of the House have equal status. In that meeting they agreed to seek changes to the Standing Orders to allow independent members to make statements and ask question during Question Period.

Prior to fleeing the NDP caucus, Drainville began his push for government reform. "The legislature is currently organized around political parties," he says. "Independent MPPs do not have the same rights as other MPPs. Clearly the system is flawed and it is time for reform."

Drainville was encouraged that the House leaders agreed to his call for making the system more democratic. The next step, he says, is to ensure that independent members have an equitable role in the committee process.

"The landmark decision to allow independent members to make statements and ask question is just the first step in making the system more democratic."

Drainville says he believes all members, whether connected to a caucus or not, deserve the right to speak on behalf of their constituents. He also maintains that in order to restore the faith of Ontario citizens, all members must have the ability to speak out on issues, to occasionally vote against their parties, and to better represent the interests of their constituents.

Drainville left the NDP caucus two months ago when it tried to silence his opposition to certain initiatives. Chief among his gripes were the government's move to legalize casino gambling and its reluctance to introduce government reform measures.

Ironically, his first advancement towards reform has from his seat as an independent member of the House. In addition, he took advantage of his first opportunity to speak as an independent member to address the casino gambling initiative.

"The concerns that I would not have an equal opportunity as an independent member to speak in the House have now been laid to rest," said Drainville. "With the agreement of the House leaders and the Speaker and the upcoming investigation of the Legislative Assembly Committee into further ways in which independent members can participate more fully, we will finally see full equality among the members of the House."

"We have to communicate the level at which the student really is," Murdoch said.

Students will be assessed on eight criteria including academic knowledge, performance skills and work ethics. Two additional criteria, interpersonal skills and cooperative learning skills, will be added in 1996.

On tests, exams and assignments students will have the choice of doing difficult or easy questions while average tasks will be done by all students. Those wishing to enter the advanced stream in grade ten will be encouraged to try the difficult questions while those wanting to enter the general stream can do the easier questions.

The system "allows a student to challenge themselves without fear of being penalized," Ladurantaye said.

There will be a review of the program next June.

MINISTRY OF NATURAL RESOURCES

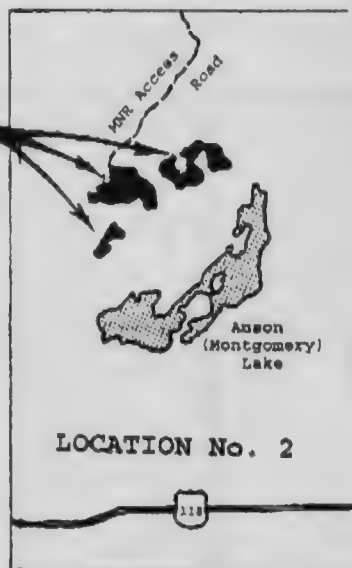

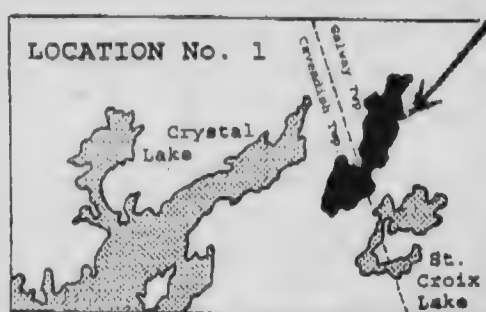

Public Notice of a Prescribed Burn

Between mid-June and mid-August, the Ministry of Natural Resources will be conducting two prescribed burns in this area for reforestation purposes. The first of these is 15 km southeast of Kinmount, about one kilometre northeast of Crystal Lake along the Galway-Cavendish township line. The second is located 15 km west of Carnarvon, about one kilometre north of Anson Lake (also known as Montgomery Lake) in Hindon Township. The exact date of these burns will depend on suitable weather conditions and any northern fire-fighting assignments for the Haliburton Fire Centre's crews. The most probable date for the burns is during the last two weeks of July.

If you observe smoke or helicopter activity in the area of these prescribed burns during this period, please do not drive to them for a closer look. Access to the burn sites will be closed, and curious on-lookers will only block traffic and impede the movements of MNR fire crew. You will be welcome to view the site after the fire has been extinguished.

The purpose of these prescribed burns is to prepare two recently logged areas for the planting of 192,000 white pine, hemlock and spruce in the spring of 1994. For more information on this prescribed burn or on other forestry activities in this area, please contact Peter Hynard of the MNR Minden Office at (705) 286-1521. For information on the day of the burn, call the Haliburton Fire Centre at (705) 457-2107.

Local timbersport competitors ready for battle

by Andy Holloway

Minden resident Joe Outram is gearing up for this weekend's Timbersport festival in his own backyard.

Outram, one of six local contestants expected to enter Saturday's competition, constructed a backyard training ground where he could practice seven years ago when he moved to this county.

However, he has been involved in timber sports since 1978 when he started on a college circuit in eastern Canada. The circuit involves anyone who goes to forestry schools in the eastern provinces and has been around for a number of years. Events would take place in places like Montreal, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Lakehead University in Thunder Bay.

Outram says he has been interested in timber games since then and what started out as a hobby has become his main interest. He even runs a forestry related business, County Tree Service, and sits on the Ontario Timbersports Committee. So at work, rest and play Outram is into timber.

"It's exciting, it's not your basic sport that everybody know about. It's also highly technical so there's a lot more to it than some other sports."

In 1990 Outram began competing professionally even though in Ontario it's on a much smaller scale than in the northern United States where the events are bigger and more money can be made. Here in Ontario, the prize purses are still small, with the top prize in Minden expected to be about $100.

"You certainly can't make a living at it," says Outram. "There are a few guys in the States that make a living from it now, but in Ontario, the Minden event is about the biggest competition going right now."

"We've got about a dozen different competitions going on the circuit, but it actually just started last year for the first time so it's still pretty new."

It may be new, but the activity is growing. Last year there were only four timber events in the province while this year that figure grew to 12, with more towns being interested in holding the event. Outram says the lack of popularity timber sports have had in previous years has him stumped, but now that they're being better organized he sees a good future.

"I guess it was just a matter of someone taking the bull by the horns and getting it organized because when we sent letters around to the fairs we hoped to get six events, but we got far more offers than we anticipated and we're actually turning some down now because we just don't have time to do them all."

Outram is entered in several events, but does not have a hot saw which is becoming one of the more popular events. The events he is in are the crosscut sawing event with his partner Steve McClinchey, and the chopping events which Outram helpfully explains to the uninitiated:

Underhand Chopping - "The block is horizontal and you stand on top of the block and chop through an eight inch by eight inch piece of poplar."

Vertical chop - "The block stands up on a pedestal and you chop it off."

Many of the competitors Outram will face are familiar to him he says. There is on the circuit, because it is a fairly small one, a degree of camaraderie among the timber fraternity. Outram says he has either met or competed against every one of the people expected to arrive here, with the exception of one or two.

But the familiarity, while nice, is also a problem because not many younger, fresh-out-of-college people are entering the event.

"Unfortunately we're not getting the response from college students in Ontario that we hoped for. We're getting one or two every year, but we're hoping for 10-12 a year," says Outram.

"I'm not really sure what the problem is, whether they are intimidated by the professional aspect, but we hope to somehow twist their arms and push the right buttons to get them involved in it more often."

Nevertheless the sport is growing in popularity among spectators says Outram. One of the reasons for that could be that there are variations in the types of events that are featured. In the northern States, log rolling is one of the big events, but it is not really done in Ontario, partly because the provincial committee likes to cater to what local woodsmen do well, which is more of the cutting events.

The other local competitors expected to enter include Eden Paulson, Peter Vance, Peter Lindsey, Dave Gilbert and John Fedeski. Even if you don't want to cheer on the locals, Outram says the event is worth a look see.

"Come on out and have a look at it, is the best way. It's an excellent spectator sport and I think once you've seen it you'll be intrigued by it."

Computer plan passes another stage

by Andy Holloway

The following brief items were discussed at the Haliburton County school board's education committee meeting last Tuesday.

Computer planning

All schools in the county have submitted their computer proposals and priorities to the board as part of the $900,000 computer initiative that the board approved earlier this year.

Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson said there are some common elements in all of the proposals. Apple software is favoured for younger children while computers that run DOS are favoured for the middle and older students. All of the staff at each of the schools was involved in the proposal-making, said Robinson.

Robinson will now visit each school and have them show exactly what they mean and how they would like to proceed. All of the information will then be put together by the board, along with information collected from road trips to other schools. They will then decide where to spend the initial start-up money of $300,000.

Road trips

Board members took road trips to two schools that have been designed with computers in mind. Trustees John Munro and Wendy Ladurantaye went to River Oaks in Halton Region and Dale Robinson went to East Cumberland in Simcoe County. Ladurantaye and Robinson both came back impressed with how the schools integrated the use of computers into the every day activities of school. The information collected on these road trips will help the board decide what is the best approach for its own computer plans.

River Oaks entered into a partnership with its board, the Ministry Of Education and Apple Computers to create its computer plan. The school has ended up with a computer ratio of between 1:6 for primary students to 1:2 for the intermediate students and is like a showcase for Apple products, said Ladurantaye.

The students mostly use stand alone computers although there is a 13 computer lab and Ladurantaye said she was impressed how the students used the computers as "just another tool" like a ruler or a pen and not as something to do the work for them.

East Cumberland is like an ICON computer showcase, said Robinson. Currently the school has five computers per classroom although that will drop to three as more students enter the partially unfinished school. There was not a central lab, which Robinson said is a benefit because the "computers are ready to use as the curriculum changes."

Cancopy

Teachers will not know whether they can legally photocopy copyrighted material until at least September. The committee is recommending the board not make a decision on photocopying until more information is available.

All of the province's boards must now pay a fee, roughly $2 a student per year, to CanCopy for photocopying privileges after the Ministry of Education decided to withdraw its funding of the program when the current license ran out in April.

Teachers in this county are no longer allowed to photocopy materials from most books, magazines and newspapers without permission.

Dropping back in

It now seems that the often reported dropout rate of 30 per cent in Canadian high schools is way off. The actual rate is around 18 per cent according to Statistics Canada, who revised their figures because of faulty calculations on their part. The federal agency had not been counting those who return to high school after dropping out for a while nor those who move to another province to continue their schooling.

Superintendent Robinson said even the 18 per cent figure is too high and that the problem should continue to be addressed.

Stats Can is now trying to work out a more accurate system to track student progress.

Trent-Severn waterways report

Significant rains of 20-40 millimetres over the Trent and Severn Watersheds during the long weekend gave the lakes a boost.

Haliburton Reservoirs rose from 91.5 per cent to 95.7 per cent between May 17 and May 25. Continued cool, wetter weather this week (to May 29) has restored levels and flows to their usual values for the time of year.

A surplus on the Kawarthas has resulted, which has to be discharged. Otonabee flows, which had been about 30 cubic metres per second was increased by May 28 to 80.

Turtles and their habitats should be protected, says MNR biologist Within Ontario, there are eight species of turtles, five of which have been documented within the Minden Area. One of the most infamous and notorious species of turtles is the common snapping turtle (Chelydra serpentina), the largest turtle native to Ontario.

Snapping turtles inhabit ponds, marshes, lakes, streams and rivers and can be observed basking on logs or rocks, or laying eggs on the gravel shoulders of roads in early June. Unfortunately, it is at these times that they often confront one of their main predators, humans.

"Misconceptions and the reputation of snapping turtles generally results in their destruction," says Tim Haxton, biologist for the Ministry of Natural Resources in Minden. "Each year many are killed along the highways and roads in Haliburton County, sometimes accidentally but often intentionally."

The shell of the snapping turtle does not completely cover its body and therefore it cannot draw itself completely within it for protection, as can other species of turtles. In order to protect themselves while on land, they become very aggressive, hissing and striking at intruders that approach them. This in return has earned them their notorious reputation and has resulted in the local extermination of many snapping turtles. However, once back in their natural environment, water, they become less aggressive and avoid confrontation by retreating and slipping deep into the water, amongst vegetation and mud.

You can help snapping turtles, but be careful when picking them up.

Snapping turtles are an important component of the ecosystem. They are omnivores, feeding on both plants and animals. They display a preference for carrion or dead matter found on the bottom of ponds or lakes which aids in maintaining the cleanliness of the local ecosystem. Being opportunist feeders, they also prey on frogs, fish, insects, crustaceans, aquatic vegetation and very occasionally ducklings. Because they are slow moving, the fish snapping turtles tend to catch are coarse fish such as suckers, carp or minnows and rarely, game fish.

Turtle eggs often eaten by predators

Snapping turtles, which may have a life expectancy of 90 years, are very slow growing, do not sexually mature until a late age (estimated in an Algonquin Park study to be 19 years) and have a relatively low replacement rate. Females may lay 20-40 eggs in a year in well drained soils, when temperatures are most suitable, generally in June. Studies have shown that approximately 98% of the eggs laid are predated by foxes, raccoons, skunks and snakes. Those that are not predated are still subjected to environmental conditions. If soil conditions are too wet, or the weather conditions are too cool, the clutch may fail to hatch. Once a young turtle does hatch, it must avoid predation by numerous animals including herons, fish, snakes, crows, raccoons and even bullfrogs. If the hatchling does manage to avoid predation, it still has to survive the first winter. Recent studies have indicated that the survival rate of hatchlings to the age of first maturity (age at which they are old and mature enough to lay eggs) is less than 1%. Snapping turtles offset this low hatchling survival rate by having a long reproductive life, up to 70 years.

"The impact of excessive adult mortality due to harvesting or arbitrary execution in a population could be devastating since snapping turtles do not tend to respond to exploitation by increasing reproduction rates," says Haxton.

Snapping turtles are protected by legislation under the Game and Fish Act. Under this act, it is illegal to hunt or possess a snapping turtle without the authority of a licence on such terms and conditions as prescribed by the regulations in various parts of the province.

"Within Haliburton County, Wildlife Management Units 54 and 56, snapping turtles may be harvested for personal consumption from July 15 through September 15, with a fishing licence," says Conservation Officer Dave Ferguson. "However, no more than two turtles can be taken in any one day, with an overall possession limit of five turtles. In addition, they may be captured only by means of a box or a funnel that does not injure or kill the turtle, or by the bare hands."

Haxton says that if you ever confront a turtle the best thing to do is leave it alone. However, if it is unavoidable or you feel it would be beneficial to move the turtle, pick it up by the tail and be cautious of the head as snapping turtle necks may extend half the length of its shell.

If you have any questions or comments in regard to snapping turtles, please contact: Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden, Ontario, K0M 2K0, (705-286-1521).

OPP targets aggressive drivers in two week long campaign

Last Tuesday, the OPP joined the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police and the Ministry of Transportation in launching a two-week safety and awareness campaign targeting aggressive drivers.

Considering the traditional increase in traffic volumes and motor vehicle collisions recorded during the summer, the timing of the campaign is appropriate.

In collisions investigated by the OPP during June, July and August last year 212 people died and a further 8,891 people were injured.

Aggressive driving habits, which include improper lane changes, following too closely, speeding, disobeying traffic controls and failing to yield right-of-way were found to have significantly contributed to these collisions, thus prompting the campaign.

Yes, there is a Rudy

Margaret and Rudy Smit, owners of Rudy's on Highway 118 in Camarvon, take time out for a photo at their grand opening celebration last weekend. After six months of extensive renovations, Rudy's opened on May 3 to an overwhelming community response. Rudy and Margaret, who plan on updating their menu seasonally, say their customers' eating enjoyment is the top priority. They have a serious commitment to quality and presentation of the food they offer.

Stanhope taxes up 4.3%

by Andy Holloway

A decrease in government grants and two major purchases have forced Stanhope council to raise the township's tax grab by 4.3 per cent for the upcoming year.

Overall, Stanhope residents will be hit with a 4.85 per cent increase when education and county tax increases are added to the pot.

The township was actually able to shave almost $46,000 off its expenditures for 1993, but a reduction of $85,000 in provincial subsidies and other revenues more than offset the decrease.

In addition, the township has to pay off the balance of its debt for rebuilding the St. Peter's Bridge. Council also had to find money to buy a new all-purpose tractor as its old one has just about had it. The tractor will be used for mowing township property grass and for snow removal. Clerk Gerald Bain said the old one is no longer capable of handling all of the duties.

The fire department had another $10,000 kicked into its reserve equipment fund, down from $40,000 the previous three years. The department wants to buy a new fire truck and council has been setting aside money for that purpose.

Lutterworth limits taxes to 3.7%

Despite the lost provincial revenues, Lutterworth Township Council has again managed to keep its tax increase to a minimum.

Council ironed out a bare-bones budget during a meeting last Thursday. The 3.7 per cent hike is the first increase that ratepayers in this township have faced in two years. There was no increase in municipal taxes from last year's budget.

Contacted Friday, Reeve Cam Ecclestone said the new budget provides for a two percent pay increase for municipal staff, which helps bring them closer to parity with their counterparts in neighbouring municipalities.

The reeve said the small tax increase was possible without dipping into any of the township's reserve accounts. Considering the uncertainty of future provincial funding, he said it would be irresponsible to draw from reserves to reduce the tax increase.

There are no capital projects in the works for this year, said Ecclestone. The only discretionary spending this year will be for the purchase of a new grader for the roads department and a truck for the building inspector. The reeve said council felt these purchases should not be postponed. Considering the potential cost of repairing the two aging vehicles, he said it was "time to bite the bullet" and replace them.

Although the municipality's share of the local taxes are rising by just 3.7 per cent, ratepayers in the township will see a 4.37 per cent increase on their tax bills. This is due to the higher increases coming from the school board and the county.

THE PROPOSED BY-LAW will come before the said Council for consideration at its regular meeting of council at the Municipal Office in the Township of Stanhope on the 14th day of July, 1993 at the hour of 11 a.m., and at that time, the council will hear in person or by his/her counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected and who applied to be heard.

Young pen pals are a delight

As it was the 24th of May long weekend there were quite a few visitors in to see their relatives and friends. My family May and Roy Cameron and their daughter Jackie came and took me for a drive and we had our supper out.

Sunday, Anita Smith read to us for the last time before autumn and Stella Burke read later in the afternoon. Thanks Anita and Stella, we appreciate it greatly.

Rev. John Burgess held the chapel service Sunday evening and Lorna Roland played the organ. Both are sincerely appreciated.

Monday was very quiet. Louise Leonard led the chapel service. We heartily thank you Louise for doing this for us. Dottie Muirhead had crafts in the afternoon and we composed poems. It's surprising what a person can do if you put your mind to it.

In the evening we played euchre with the help of Corinne Arsenault. We thank her very much.

Wednesday, under the guidance of Pearl Cowan games of euchre, crokinole and cribbage were organized in the auditorium with the help of Mabel Deacon, Jeanne Sears, Carrie Drysdale, Freda Hulbig and Kathy Wood and of course Doris. We had an enjoyable afternoon and thank those responsible.

There was a tea party and birthday party on Thursday. The Hyland Crest Auxiliary presented the birthday people with a beautiful cake. They were Corinne Bonneville, Beatrice Britain, Myrtle O'Halloran, Alice Rivers, Jean Taylor, Lorne Fry and Marshall Harrison. Happy birthday to you all.

The lovely tea and program was supplied by the Harcourt Chapel Crossroads Children. While the ladies prepared the tea the children put on a program. Daniel Pothaar played the piano. O' Canada was sung and Grace was said followed by O'Wheel, a year-old dog doing some smart tricks. The students' choir sang several numbers and Mrs. Burt sang a solo and a duet with one of the older girls. Tea was served by the ladies. It was a happy afternoon and we all thank you very much for coming so far to entertain us. We

by Winnifred Barnum

certainly do thank you.

Friday, our Archie Stouffer Elementary School pen pals from grade five and their teachers were invited to Hyland Crest Auditorium for a barbeque luncheon to meet their senior pen pals of the last year. Each student or pen pal was presented with a souvenir pencil made by the residents. Molly McCarthy was presented with a shelf for knickknacks decorated and finished by Winnifred Barnum, for the very hard work she has done for us during the school term. The presentations were made by Alice Todd. Molly was also presented with a gift of small glass, shaped like a heart and full of bath beads, from the pupils.

The grade fives also presented Hyland Crest residents with a $25 donation for our tub fund and were thanked nicely by Alice Todd. The pupils put on a small program of square dancing, karate demonstration and piano solos as well as doing the Achy Breaky. It was enjoyed by all.

Last, but not least was the hard work of the kitchen staff who prepared the hot dogs, hamburgers and ice cream. We sincerely thank them for their efforts to make this a success.

Later that afternoon the Grandfathers 4 came and entertained for the rest of the afternoon. I am sure everyone appreciated their music.

Though Mothers' Day has come and gone I want to add an item for the column that appeared during the Mothers' Day week. On Mothers' Day, Pearl Cowan, Dottie Muirhead and Nancy Gallant came to Hyland Crest and pinned beautiful corsages on each mother here. The corsages were all made by Nancy Gallant. Even if I omitted this in my column we all were delighted with them and thank Nancy and her helpers sincerely.

Two very different shows appear at Haliburton's Rails' End Gallery

Two new exhibits have made their way into the Rails' End Gallery this month.

The first, The Decorated Body, is an exhibition of original hand made jewellery by primarily Ontario artists. Working independently, 12 artists have used combinations of sterling silver, gold, glass, beads, bark and many other materials to create funky and sophisticated jewellery.

The artists are Martha Baird, Leslie Chapley, Cheryl Dexter, Andrew Goss, Sandra Noble Goss, Colleen Lynch, Kimberly Price, Susan Rathburn, Rula, Elisabeth Soppelsa, Ann Wylie-Toal and Beth Zwecher.

The second, Jim

Thomson: Calendar, is an exhibition of 12 vessels fabricated from clay and glaze. Each work represents a month of the year and conveys an interpretation of the changes of season.

Using the metaphor of the fish pond located in his backyard, Thomson expresses the paradoxical constant in life: the never changing phenomena that produce change and transformation in reality.

Both shows continue to June 19. The gallery is open Tuesday to Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Rails End Gallery is a non-profit, public art gallery administered by the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts.

Nature needs our help to bounce back

In order to develop a sustainable future, we have to get beyond the eco-babble that characterizes so much of the rhetoric around environmental issues.

That means we have to search for the heart of the problems and then define alternatives. Here are some thoughts.

The most remarkable aspect of nature is its resilience. Different ecosystems have evolved to recover from catastrophic natural disasters. Their regenerative capacity rests upon biological diversity and time. The array of species and genetic variation within species provides the raw material from which survivors of a calamity will be selected. And time is essential if the affected species are to recover.

For most of human history, our species' global impact was slight because our numbers were small, our territory limited and our technology simple. Even when we caused a major disaster, we didn't have to worry about consequences because we could simply move on. That continues to be a predominant mindset today. But things have changed because of the scale and speed of humankind's impact on its surroundings. Population growth has jumped almost vertically off the page in this century. Our numbers alone escalate the demands we make on our surroundings.

And when a population explosion is accompanied by an even greater climb in harvesting resources, the combination is deadly.

Our ecological footprint is exacerbated by a global economy that requires ever-growing consumption. Maximization of profit seldom includes incentives to protect the long-term stability of local communities and ecosystems. All these factors taken together make us a major planetary predator and demand the adoption of a new ethic and sense of responsibility.

The speed with which our technological powers have been amplified is remarkable. Almost the entire history of modern technology from cars to computers

Reflections

by David Suzuki

to biotechnology occurred in less than a century. Logging, for example, went from centuries of cutting trees with axes to harvesting with handsaws, chainsaws and feller-bunches. But instead of compensating for the greater impact of technology, we have kept increasing the take to reap greater profits.

In Canada, we've had more than a century of experience with declining natural resources. They include passenger pigeons, old-growth forests, bison and northern cod. If we insist on using newer, bigger technologies then history teaches us we have to respond quickly once we recognize the problems they create.

But once unleashed, technology is difficult to pull back.

There are few environmental examples as clearly defined in cause, effect and alternative as CFC-induced breakdown of atmospheric ozone. From the time this phenomenon was found, almost 50 years will have elapsed before CFC concentration in the upper atmosphere begins to fall.

We are prevented from changing our ways because political leaders seem to lack vision or courage. In politics, being "realistic" means preoccupation with re-election, raising campaign funds, avoiding major controversy and paying off political debts.

When was the last time a Canadian politician put belief or integrity ahead of political survival?

When environmental activists demand accountability and radical change after a disaster, governments predictably respond by defending the status quo - even when we don't know enough to make such assessments.

Industry, on the other hand, has enormous vested interests in maintaining the status quo without paying the true eco-costs. Maximizing efficiency and global competitiveness through an unfettered "private sector" means subordinating sustainability of resources and communities to growth and profit.

When pressured, the usual reaction is to avoid confronting the issue, citing critics' lack of credibility or the threat of job loss. Companies manufacturing ecologically damaging products like disposable cups, juice cartons or diapers often rationalize it after the fact so that they can carry on with business as usual.

There is no better example of the way industry creates self-serving justifications without addressing long-term sustainability than Canada's forest industry. Next week, I'll discuss the fallacies in the industry's rationalizing.

Club 35 euchre game winners for May 31 included for most lone hands Verna Sawyer. Eleanor Bunker and June Branning were high lady and man and Norm Lee got the 50-50 draw. Others were Doreen Lewis, Milt Fletcher and Sharon Hewston. Special prize went to Doreen Lewis. The next wheels to meals dinner at Club 35 will be held June 8 and June 22 at 12 noon. For information call 489-3016.

The Thursday afternoon bowling league had 20 members enter the Senior Games. 12 of these members won at Carnarvon on Wednesday May 26 and all are going on to the District games at Burke's Falls on June 23. Congratulations and good luck to you all.

A wonderful birthday party in honour of Irene Moore's 75th birthday was held on Sunday May 30 on the lawn at her home where she welcomed relatives, friends and neighbours who partook of the bountiful buffet and birthday cake and enjoyed a visit with old friends. The party was given by her family and other guests came from Brampton, Mississauga, Oshawa, Bramalea, Nova Scotia, Bracebridge, Lindsay and the Minden area. Many more to come Irene!

St. Paul's weekly Monday euchre game winners on May 31 included Pearl Cowen with most lone hands, Mary Colman, Betty Hardy and the draw to Joyce Hewitt.

Minden Legion Seniors group held euchre games on Tuesday June 1 with winners being Jack Chilton for most lone hands, Shirley E., Delilah, Mitzi A and Ruth R. On Tuesday June 15 there will be a luncheon meeting, for senior legion members only, at 12:30 p.m.

Nell Finlay of Lindsay spent several enjoyable days with her cousin Joyce Hewitt.

Chic and Marian Minaker spent some time in Lindsay recently at a family get-together.

Last weekend John and Jean Bierman from Richmond Hill were visiting with Bob and Audrey Vick and the Woolfreys from Bridgenorth were also there.

Look out if you happen to be in Lindsay - the parking meters need your quarters and you could end up paying a fine if you don't feed them.

Dorothy McElwain spent last week-end visiting Mike, Maureen and family in Millbrook and attended the Hydro hockey tournament.

Lucky winner at Kinmount Legion for May was Mike Shaw of Toronto who won $117. Congratulations Mike!

Bud Dart of Haliburton spent a few days recently with Bob and Audrey Vick.

Stanhope weekly Tuesday afternoon bridge game winners on June 1 were Gloria Moore, Vange Croucher and Betty Culley. Special thanks from the group to John Klok who looked after bridge games all winter. All bridge players are welcome to come out Tuesday afternoon, for more information call 489-3300.

All good wishes to the following who have been under the weather recently: Shirley Stamp, Lorna Hogg, John James, Louis Johnson and Don McElwain.

We have had interesting Tuesday mornings over the winter as youngsters Philip Neville, Corey McKenzie, Greg Kerr, Bobi Sutton, Jason Cochrane and Mark Sisson from Archie Stouffer Elementary School, from the class of Brenda Brouwers and Judy Johnson came to The Terrace and The Court to read with the senior residents. It has been a learning time both for the seniors and the students as they adapted activities to suit the required levels. Last Tuesday the seniors were invited to the school to see the activities going on in the classrooms and joined the children in the Home Ec room where everyone enjoyed a delightful time together and a lovely lunch with parents Barb Sisson and Jean Neville assisting. We were impressed by the manners and attitudes of the children. Principal McKay spoke with the seniors group as did teacher Brenda thanking them for their co-operation. The seniors group included Margaret Harrison, Doris Moore, Fern Donnelly, Marion Fisher, May Minto, Eleanor Pye, Marjorie and Don Sisson and myself. As one of the seniors said, "It's great to be needed again at our ages!"

Kinmount Seniors club euchre games held at the Station on May 20 winners included Lloyd Crego with most lone hands, Helen Byne, Gord Kellett, Maggie Kylie and Bill St. Thomas. The winners on May 27 were Lloyd Crego for most lone hands, Ruth Kellett, Ted Wilkins, Bill St. Thomas and Mildred St. Thomas. This group meets at the Station for euchre games every Thursday night at 8 p.m.

Sincere sympathy to the families and friends of the late Lockey Hoffman, John Pollard, Eileen Scott, Minnie Eastman, Myrtle O'Halloran, Althea Gartshore and Carl Walker whose funerals were last week.

Some dates you might want to note: Minden Agricultural Society meeting is Tuesday, June 8 at 7:30 at the Fair Building. Women's Institute pot luck lunch is at Minden United Church hall on Wednesday June 16 at 12 noon, bring your dishes and we welcome all ladies.

Stanhope Men's Horseshoe Club will have a tournament (behind the firehall) on Sunday, June 28, sign up is at 10 a.m., for details phone 489-2973. Keep in mind the Red Cross Bazaar is on the Village Green on July 31.

Decisions

I often wonder why people want to hurt others,
We used to be taught that all men are brothers.
Some people seem to think old folks don't feel any pain
But one thing is sure, they had better think again.
It says in James that our tongue is sometimes evil
And I agree it is often controlled by the devil.
But then there are folks who really are kind,
I have quite a few of these people in mind,
They make a real effort to make our days bright
And we think of them with love when day turns into night.
So would you rather be one who makes people glad,
Or one who causes trouble and makes others feel sad? I wonder.

Florence Robinson.
